SEL Minute

Managing difficulty in our relationships is a part of social-emotional learning. How we handle disagreements, mistakes and disappointments can affect both our moods and the quality of our interactions with others. Communicating in a clear, calm and proactive way will help us settle interpersonal problems productively. Next time we feel the tug of conflict, let's challenge ourselves to be objective, flexible and solution-oriented. When navigating difficulty between others, we can seize the chance to foster greater peace and understanding. "Every conflict presents you with a choice. You can choose to view conflict as an opportunity to teach, or as an opportunity to blame and punish" ~ Dr. Becky Bailey

One Book One School

We are getting so excited for the week of One book One school here at Windridge Elementary!! April 19th through the 22nd will be our celebration of The Wild Robot! We know a lot of you have been reading this great book and we have been reading it here at the school as well! We just wanted to remind you all of a couple of contests that will be taking place that week.

We would love for you to make your own robot! You can make a robot by yourself or with a group. We have already had several great robots submitted to the library! If you make a robot you need to have it in the library by April 21st.

We will also be having a bookmark contest. We thought it would be fun to have the Windridge kids design a bookmark about the Wild Robot. Mrs. Bernhisel will have blank book marks in the library if you are interested in designing one. We will need to have those turned in by Thursday April 22nd. We will announce the bookmark winners the following Monday April 26th.

Each day that week we will have a question at lunch that all the children can answer about the book and the Hope Squad will be picking the winners at the end of the day! We have a few other surprises up our sleeves so stay tuned!
